Introduction

The literacy and numeracy lesson plans arising from the School Improvement Programme (SIP) are part of efforts to improve teaching and learning in response to the baseline surveys and classroom observations in 2010. These indicated that teachers had challenges with lesson delivery, which in turn negatively affected children's learning.

To improve children's learning, ESSPIN (Education Sector Support Programme in Nigeria) supported the State to provide lesson plans to primary 1—3 teachers in all 1,223 public primary schools during the 2014/15 school year.

In the 2015/16 school year, we are glad to extend the lesson plans to primary 4—5 teachers to enable more children to benefit from the innovation.

Executive Chairman,
Enugu State Universal
Basic Education Board

Foreword

Quality education comes about as a mix of factors. The teacher is the most important element in ensuring that a child acquires the right kind of education to meet acceptable learning outcome benchmarks. It takes a lot to bring a teacher to exhibit the right mix of attitudes, aptitudes and skills, which is why the state has partnered with ESSPIN to develop literacy and numeracy lesson plans.

I hope the lesson plans will empower our teachers to equip our children with the literacy and numeracy skills they need to succeed in both school and society.

Finally, I commend all who have worked hard to develop and produce the lesson plans, especially the Enugu State Universal Basic Education Board, the UK Department for International Development (DFID) and the DFID-funded Education Sector Support Programme in Nigeria (ESSPIN).

Honourable Commissioner for Education Enugu State

The literacy lesson plans help you teach reading, writing, grammar, speaking and listening. Each week focuses on either reading or writing.

How?

How

This section illustrates a key concept through simple instructions and photographs. A sign at the top of the column shows you which part of the lesson uses this resource.

Learning expectations

Every pupil in the class will be at a different stage of understanding in literacy. The first page of each week identifies learning expectations for the week. These learning expectations are broken into three levels:

What all pupils will be able to do.

What most pupils will be able to do.

What some pupils will be able to do.

Assessment

Weeks 17, 18 and 19 include an assessment task (found on the weekly page) for you to carry out with five pupils at the end of the week. This will help you find out whether they have met the learning expectations.

Next to the task, there is an example of a pupil's work, which shows what a pupil can do if they have met the learning expectations.

If most pupils have not met the learning expectations, you may have to teach some of the week again.

For reading tasks, ask pupils to write answers in their exercise books so you can see what they can do.

Spelling

Each lesson starts with a spelling section. Pupils need to identify sounds in words in order to spell them. Tell them to try to sound out words before they spell them.

Grammar

Pupils will be taught different types of grammar to help them improve their writing and reading.

Comprehension

Pupils will do activities to help them understand the passage they have been reading. Activities might be questions, role plays or drawing pictures.

Reading

Arrange the class into groups of eight or fewer for supported group activities. There are four activities, A, B, C and D, which each group will complete during the week.

If you have a very large class, you may have more than one group for each letter.

Shared writing

Take ideas for writing from the whole class. Write their ideas on the chalkboard and ask questions to develop their ideas and produce a piece of writing.

Guided writing

Take ideas for writing from a group of pupils. Guide them to write by explaining and showing examples of good writing. Work with the group to produce one piece of writing.

Independent writing

Pupils practise good writing using the skills learned during the week. This should be their own ideas and writing, not copied from the chalkboard.

Brainstorm

Gather ideas for writing by collecting words and phrases that pupils can use during independent writing. Write the title in the middle of the chalkboard.

Ask questions, and as they reply, write their answers around the title to make a spider diagram.

Folk tale adapted from Nigeria Primary English 5, pages 183—184, copyright Learn Africa Plc.

The boy who made wishes come true – part 1

There were rats everywhere when the rain came. Jide found one in his shoe. Emi saw some asleep in the cooking pot and her father found several in his car.

The village elders called a meeting to debate the best way to get rid of the rats. They discussed ideas for hours but no one had a good, practical idea. Then, an old woman told the villagers that in a small town far away, near the Niger River, lived a boy called Umeh.

Umeh had a long silver flute that he played so beautifully people came from other towns and villages to listen to him. It was a magic flute.

When Umeh played, people made a wish. If the wish was a kind one and brought happiness, their wish came true.

"Let's ask Umeh to come here and play his flute," suggested the old woman. "We can ask for a wish to make the rats leave our village."

The elders sent two men to talk to him. A month later, they returned with Umeh. The boy said, "My town is very poor. If I get rid of your rats, you must promise to give me money so that we can build a clinic and a new school."

Everybody agreed to pay Umeh. "We'll do everything you ask," they promised. Umeh said, "Every rat will die when I play my flute."

The boy who made wishes come true – part 2

Very early the next morning, Umeh stood in the centre of the village and began to play his flute. Rats appeared from everywhere. When they heard the music, they followed behind him. Umeh danced towards the river and the rats followed him. He walked into the river until the water was up to his knees, then his waist and then his chin. The rats followed him and they were all drowned.

Everyone was so happy that all the rats had gone. The village elders were sitting together, talking. "All the rats are dead now and he can't bring them back, can he? Why should we give him so much money?" one of them asked.

Another said, "He is not from our village, is he? Let's keep the money."

When Umeh returned from the river, the elders refused to pay him. Umeh was furious. He said, "If you do not pay the money I will bring great sadness to the village." No one believed him. "You are only a boy. What can you do to us?" asked the elders.

Umeh began to play his flute again. To everyone's surprise, all the young children came out of their homes, laughing and dancing. They followed Umeh's beautiful music. Umeh was dancing towards the river where he had drowned all the rats.

Suddenly all the people were frightened. When Umeh got to the edge of the river, they shouted, "Please stop, Umeh. We are very sorry. We will give you all the money we promised you."

Umeh turned round, playing his flute and danced back to the village with all the children behind him. This time the villagers cheered Umeh and held a celebration with a great feast.

Afterwards, Umeh returned to his own town with the money which he could use to build the clinic and new school.

At the same time, the chief went to a friend's house and told him what he had done. 'How could you disappoint this wise lady? All the villagers might be in danger now,' said his friend.

The next day the chief visited the wise woman. 'What are you doing here?' she snapped as she opened the door. Then she saw the bag of gold.

Story adapted from Nigeria Primary English 5, pages 105—106, copyright Learn Africa Plc.

The magic lake – part 1

Everyone knew about the lake but no one had seen it. Mr Adah, who owned the shop on the corner, said there was a magic lake on the other side of the forest. His elder brother had dared to walk through the forest but did not reach it because a vulture flew down from a tree and made a terrible noise. His brother ran back as fast as he could.

Since that time, no children had tried to find the lake. However, three friends agreed to meet and go there. Very quietly, while everyone was asleep, Tahir, Joe and Sheri slipped out of their beds and set off across the fields to the forest.

They were surprised to discover a path that was easy to follow. Tahir was terrified of snakes but he did not tell his friends. Joe was afraid of spiders but he kept quiet. Sheri was scared of baboons but she said nothing. It was very strange but all three children felt safe among the banana trees.

Later, rays of bright sunshine shone into the forest and then, suddenly, they walked through the trees into an open area. Their mouths fell open as they stared across a lake with thousands of tall, pink birds standing in the water, enjoying the warm sun on their backs. They children looked down into the water. It seemed to be smiling at them!

The magic lake – part 2

Then something strange happened. The waves in the water seemed to form into a mouth. "You can each have three wishes. Choose wisely," the water whispered. Tahir fell back in surprise, Joe nearly fell in the lake and Sheri gazed at the water in amazement.

Thinking quickly, Joe said, "Water, I'd like a television for my family and a new pair of football boots. I want to play for Nigeria and help us to win the African Cup of Nations."

Water said, "Joe, you will have your television and boots. You will become a famous footballer one day."

Shaking nervously, Tahir said, "Please, Water, can I have a new car for my mum and dad and can I have a computer? I want to be a famous writer."

"Your mum and dad will have a new car, Tahir, and you will write great novels on your computer," replied Water.

Speaking quietly, Sheri asked, "Water, I need books because I want to go to university and become a doctor. My cousin Oji had a bad accident and can't walk. Please can you make his legs better?"

Water seemed pleased with Sheri. "You have been wise, Sheri. You will have lots of books and become a doctor. Oji will be walking before the end of this year."

Fifteen years later the friends met in Lagos.

"What a great footballer you are, Joe!" said Sheri.

"You are a brilliant doctor, Sheri," Tahir said.

"I have read your novels. You are a great writer, Tahir," said Joe.

Smiling happily, Sheri said, "I've often wondered whether we would have done these things if we hadn't found that lake."

- 1 The three boys were surprised when the water started talking
- 2 When the water said 'Choose wisely' it meant that the boys needed to think carefully about their wishes.
- 3 Joe wanted new football boots because he wanted to become a famous football player and win the African Cup of Nations with Nigeria.
- 4 Although the boys could make three wishes each, they all asked the water for two wishes.
